Dr. Ghali has lived and practiced in Shreveport for the past 26 years. He and his wife, Hope, have four children. Dr. Ghali's practice spans from primary cleft repair to cosmetic surgery to head and neck cancer. His professional interest lies in the treatment of pediatric craniofacial deformities including craniosynostosis, cleft lip and palate, and dentofacial deformities. However, his surgical and teaching interests also include dentoalveolar surgery, dental implants, cosmetic surgery, head and neck oncology, and trauma.

Dr. Ghali has served as the Professor and Chairman of the Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery Department for the past 15 years. In October 2016, he was named Chancellor and Dean of the Health Sciences Center. He subsequently relinquished the role of Dean to focus on negotiations for a new hospital partner resulting in a joint venture with Ochsner Health System effective Oct. 1, 2018. He is very active in resident, fellow, and student education with appointments to numerous committees keeping LSU Health Shreveport at the forefront of medical care and education in Louisiana. Dr. Ghali has continued to serve on national and international organizations such as AAOMS, ABOMS, and IAOMS. Dr. Ghali's association with these organizations is recognized in shaping the profession of oral and maxillofacial surgery, as well as providing international recognition for the LSU Health Shreveport residency and fellowship programs.

Dr. Ghali has numerous research interests including clinical and basic science research. He has published in numerous peer-reviewed journals, written many book chapters and has edited textbooks that are vital to the knowledge base of many in the specialty.
